Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS.

AT his office, next door below Craw-ford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank

Notes of the Western Bank at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U.

States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns.—All persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on.

RAN away from the subscriber about the 4th of August, Negro Woman

LOUIZA—she is 25 years old, about 5 feet five inches high, and stout; has some of her front teeth out, and is apt to laugh when spoken to; she has a sister Marinda and a mother living in Georgetown, one above

Semmes's tavern, and the other on Herring

Hill, where she has been harbored for two weeks, and left there to come home, but has not done so. I expect she can be found in Georgetown or Alexandria, where she has many acquaintances. I will give the above reward if brought home, or lodged in jail so that I get her again.

QUID PRO QUO.
The idler, who for months and years,
In some bright fair one's train appears,
And sees time onward flow,
His money spent, his hopes departed,
Himself left hopeless, broken hearted—
He gives his quid pro quo?

The fair one, who by nature blest
With charms and wit, by fame caressed,
Sports with the sufferer's woes,
Sees time's dark shadows round arrayed,
While youngling's call her an old maid,
Has spent her quid pro quo?

The author, who at midnight tide,
Sees pale hope mock conception's pride,
While far his health and vigor glide,
As wanes the taper slow—
Till art in vain essays to save,
While laurels wither on his grave,
Has lost his quid pro quo?

The soldier, who from home afar,
Has swam the mottled surge of war,
To quell his country's foe,
Shall back with but one leg repair,
And get some land, the Lord knows where;
This is his quid pro quo?

Now I, who weave this idle rhyme,
Obivious scroll, with waste of time,
Must to my labor go,
I but a tedious hour beguile,
To meet the critic's surly smile—
This is my quid pro quo?

GAMALIEL.
Lewis XII., Henry IV., Lewis XVI. and the present possessor of the crown of France are almost the only monarchs of that country who deserved the love and veneration of their people. As to Henry IV., he was loved and venerated, and is even to this day admitted and revered to an excess almost approaching to idolatry; as the following little incident will serve to shew.—About ten years before the late revolution, a gentleman walking over the Pont Neuf, at Paris, was accosted by a beggar who implored his charity. "In the name of God, sir," said the beggar, "bestow your charity!"—In the name of Christ—In the name of the Blessed Virgin, do, sir!"—the gentleman walked on. The beggar invoked half the saints in the calendar—still the gentleman remained inexorable.—At length they passed the statue of Henry IV., on that bridge—"Pray, sir, in the name of Henry IV., sir," said the beggar.—"In the name of Henry IV!" exclaimed the gentleman, starting from his reverie—here, friend, here's a Louis for you." (Alex's Gaz.)

The reader may remember some time since an interesting account was published of the island of Pitcairn. In the year 1789, some mutineers belonging to the English ship Bounty, under the command of Capt. Christian, intermarried with the natives of Otaheite. From this intercourse a race has sprung up to the number of fifty, which had never been discovered until the year 1814, when an American trader by the name of Mayhew Folger, accidentally found them out. The island has been since visited by two of his Britannic majesty's ships.—These simple children of nature have been taught to believe in the principles of the Christian religion by Christian, the only surviving mutineer, whom they reverence as a father, and whose word is law. Unacquainted with all the follies and forms of polished life, this little community lead an existence perfectly pastoral. The women are described as models of exquisite beauty, and the men to have all the innocence and simplicity of an Arcadian state. They say that it is against the religion which they profess for a man to be allowed two wives. They repeat scriptural passages with much apparent devotion, and always say grace before meals. How many novels and poems will be formed from this practical specimen of Arcadian manners; it is needless to conjecture. Christian expressed some desire to return to his native country, and he was immediately surrounded by his little community, who with many prayers and tears entreated him not to go.

SLANDER.
Against slander there is no defence:—Hell cannot boast so foul a fiend; no man deplores so fell a foe: It stabs with a word: It is the pestilence walking in darkness, spreading contagion far and wide, which the most wary traveller cannot avoid: It is the heart searching dagger of the dark assassin; it is the poisoned arrow whose wound is incurable: It is the mortal sting of the deadly adder: Murder is its employment; innocence its prey; and ruin its sport.

ALEXANDRIA:
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1818.

If those potentates who direct and control, at their will, the affairs of the old world, are sincere and persevering in the principles by which they seem desirous to be thought to govern, the present may be considered as the era, above all others, the most propitious to the human race; for no one of common sense and feeling will hesitate to acknowledge that peace is all that is wanting to render the condition of man as prosperous as it can be hoped to be made by any political contrivance.—Yet there are evils which seem to be, as if of necessary consequence, the offspring of a long continued peace.—The indefatigable activity of the human mind must have some specific means of indulging itself, and if they have not wars of the sword upon which to work, men will find opinions and words to contend about.—The truth of these observations may be seen demonstrated in the histories of Elizabeth, James and Charles. The glorious reign of Elizabeth had made England to be "loved at home, revered abroad"—and under the mild domination of the pacific James, the improvements in the arts and manufactures of the country had gone hand in hand with the improvements in its commerce.—"It is, therefore," says De Witt, "astonishing to conceive, in a commercial nation, the stimulus of peace." The people, in fact, seem to respire; they fling off an immense load of expense which had only contributed to spread devastation and misery through the world; the public mind mounts upwards, and with new ardor pursues the arts of civilized life. Nor was this less obvious in ancient times than in modern, upon many arduous occasions, particularly during the interval between the first and second punic wars. How, in that period, the commerce and prosperity of Carthage flourished, it is unnecessary to state. It was still more apparent in the reigns of Elizabeth and James. But as every good has its evils, the suspension of arms set opinions afloat, which expanding into words, produced evils that are, even at this day, at a height that many good and wise men deplore.

In that age, when religion broke out in various new sects—when puritanism made its appearance, and almost every day produced a new religion, it would be astonishing to reflect how ductile the mind became to deception, did we not know that there was ever in that country a singular cullibility which has, at different times, exhibited itself in different forms.—The general frenzy which had several times sent half the people of the western parts of the world to attack those of the eastern, was, though more romantic, not much more extravagant than the objects of different contentions, religious and civil, through a long series of years, of which the war and its concomitant enormities, in the middle of the 17th century, were the latest proofs. Respecting these extravagant ebullitions of the public mind, enough has, perhaps, been said, from time to time—but after that period the pursuits of men were, by the operations of commerce, changed from attempts to acquire power and domination, through the medium of religious hypocrisy, to pursuits after riches by the fair course of traffic; and the increase of commerce, and consequent increase of wealth in England, surpassed any thing known in history, till the process was interrupted by the country's being plunged into anarchy and civil warfare by the great rebellion.

There is no part of ancient or modern history, more curious, more interesting, or more instructive, than that portion of the annals of Great Britain—nor one that ought to be more diligently studied by those who wish to qualify themselves for discharging the important office of statesman and legislator with credit to themselves and advantage to their country.

The Editor of the Gazette will please acquaint his readers that the Alexandria Theatre will not open until the 1st of January. I am induced to communicate this information, which may be relied on, from a desire to satisfy the friends of the theatre who are daily making inquiries of each other on the subject. Of the talents of the company I am unacquainted—but from the very complimentary manner in which they are spoken of in Petersburg, I am induced to believe they are truly deserving of encouragement. Many of the members are strangers on our boards, and have been selected from other theatres by Mr. Caldwell, from a due regard to their high professional abilities.

The friends of Mr. C. will learn with pleasure that his southern excursion has been very popular, and such as to equal in pecuniary reward the advance of his dramatic fame. His success in Petersburg thus far, has been unexampled. Overflowing houses and unbounded approbation have testified the high regard with which its citizens view his exertions, and, however liberal they have been heretofore, they are now proving that "His is the bright, the rich reward at last."

With regard to this theatre, I am gratified to have it in my power to add that the manager will fulfil his promise, given on the last night of performance, to have such alterations made as will ensure the safety of the citizens in case of fire, as well as render them comfortably warm on the most inclement evenings. Mr. C. cannot be ignorant of the formidable opposition existing against the theatre, nor of the heavy taxes imposed on theatrical exhibitions. Notwithstanding this powerful barrier to his professional success, he is still desirous of contributing to the amusement of his friends, and appears willing to prove his gratitude for former favors by additional efforts for their rational gratification.

AN ALEXANDRIAN.
Ninian Edwards and Jesse B. Thomas are elected, by the legislature of Illinois, to be senators in congress from that state.

A private letter from St. Bartholomew, dated October 8th, and received in this city, states that the government of Sweden has sold that island, to what power is not known, but almost certainly to Russia.—The sale was made on the 9th of June last, and is to be consummated in Dec. next. This has much disappointed a hope, which the inhabitants appear to have indulged in, that the United States would have purchased it—for what purpose however, or with what object, we do not exactly see.

(National Intelligence.)

General Gaines, his lady and suite, arrived in this place (says the Darien Gazette of the 2d inst.) last Friday evening, and set off next day for Amelia Island. It is supposed that he will fix his headquarters at Fernandina for two or three months, and that two battalions of United States' troops are on their way to join him. This would seem to indicate something; and, if conjecture might be hazarded, we would say, he will, at that post, await the decision of Congress on the Floridas, and act according.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.
Capt. Willis, of the schooner James, H. M. Culloch, arrived at this port last evening, in 18 days from Aux Cayes, left at that place the schr Venus, Samson, of N. York, which had arrived in 7 days from St. Thomas. Capt. Samson states, that while in sight and within 4 leagues of Aux Cayes, on the 14th of October, at 10 A. M. was boarded by a small sloop manned with 20 men, all blacks excepting the captain. They were all armed with muskets, swords and pistols. They, without any hesitation, boarded, robbed and plundered the said schooner of goods that the part of her cargo consisted of, also her cabin and ship stores. They also commenced to commit the same depredations on the crew, by stripping them of the wearing apparel that they stood in. When Capt. Samson remonstrated with them, they drew their poignards and threatened his life. His crew being unarmed, it was in vain to resist. After detaining the schooner about four hours, they left her to proceed to her place of destination; where she arrived next morning.

Markets at Aux-Cayes dull, and no lenity showed to any American master in the port. His excellency president Beyer is here; in consequence of which, no business can be done. He has at length contemplated to have the wharf repaired, that all vessels may with more convenience land their cargoes.

(Amer.)

Norfolk, November 9.
CASE OF THE SHIP PROVIDENCIA.
This vessel, it will be recollected, was seized by the revenue officers of this port, in the month of June, 1817, while she was attempting to pass up to Baltimore. The Providencia was the property of certain subjects of the king of Spain from whom she was forcibly taken, while going from St. Andro to Havana with a cargo of cordage, cutlery, &c. by an armed vessel called the Mangrove, fitted out at Baltimore, commanded by a capt. Barnes, and cruising under the flag of one of the independent provinces of South America. The captors after putting a prize crew on board of her, ordered her to Buenos Ayres, but owing to stress of weather and other causes, the prize master thought proper to shape his course for Baltimore. On being brought in here, she was immediately labelled by the consul of his Catholic Majesty, in behalf of her Spanish owners, and a decree subsequently issued out of the district court of the United States, directing both the vessel and cargo to be sold and the proceeds deposited in the bank, subject to the future order of the court. The following, we understand, is the final decree of the judge, (Tucker) pronounced during the pending term of the court:—five sixths of the whole amount to be paid over to His Catholic Majesty's consul for the state of Virginia, for the benefit of the Spanish owners: the remaining sixth to be retained and held at the disposal of the court, as salvage, should any legal claim of that sort be put in within 12 months; but should no such claim be preferred during that period, or being preferred and the court should deem it insufficient, then the sum so retained to be paid over to the Spanish consul as in the first case.

(Herald.)

LAW INTELLIGENCE.
A novel and very important question of law as respects the jurisdiction of the federal courts in admiralty and maritime cases, has been decided by the judges of the circuit court of the United States, during their present session in Philadelphia. The question arose out of a warrant of attachment issued from the circuit court of the United States for the Rhode Island district, tested on the 8th July 1818, directed to the marshals of the districts of Rhode Island, New York and the eastern and western districts of Pennsylvania. This warrant reciting that the ship Frances and cargo were consigned as prize to the captors in the Rhode Island district in the year 1813, a certain bale or box of merchandise, part of that cargo, had, by mistake, been delivered to a certain James Stewart, and taken out of that district; that after monition, disobedience, contempt and warrant of attachment, Stewart had absconded from the United States, and that on the representation of Stewart's proctor and the captors, that Peter Graham, of Philadelphia, was in possession of the said box or bale of merchandise, or the proceeds thereof, a monition had been issued to and served upon him to bring in the same, and, that he having disobeyed the monition, and being in contempt therefor, the warrant in question issued, which commanded the marshals to whom it was directed in the name of the president of the United States, to attach and arrest the said Peter Graham if he, to be found in their districts, respectively, and hold him in close custody to answer said court for his contempt; or if he cannot be found within the districts, respectively, then to seize and sequester the goods and effects of Peter Graham to the amount of 2000 dollars.

The marshal having taken Mr. Graham into custody by virtue of this warrant of attachment, he sued out a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of contesting the lawfulness of the confinement. Mr. Binney was heard on the part of Mr. Graham on Monday last, denying the power of any district or circuit court of the United States to send or execute its process out of the district over which such court presides; and denying the legality of this process in particular, because Graham never was a party to the proceeding in Rhode Island; and also questioning the validity of the warrant on various points of form. The court in consideration of the novelty and great importance of the question, requested the district attorney, Mr. Ingersoll, to argue in support of the warrant, which he undertook to do accordingly, but asked for a few days time to examine it. The court therefore postponed the argument until Friday, when it was resumed by Mr. Ingersoll, in support of the warrant, and Mr. Chauncey in reply and conclusion against it. In support of the warrant, it was contended that the constitution and laws had given to the several courts of the United States all admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, without other limitation than the cases themselves, or subject matter required, and that as respected place there was no limit to their jurisdiction; that this being a case of prize, in which the jurisdiction of the Rhode Island admiralty court had once attached by possession of the thing, its process would reach all the incidents and consequences of such a case; and that by the practice and principles of all prize courts, which are international, not municipal tribunals, they are not confined to or by territorial limitations.

On Saturday morning, Judge Washington delivered the opinion of the court, stating, that though during the argument the judges were not without some doubt on the subject, yet they had determined to discharge Mr. Graham from custody on the ground that the several circuit and district courts of the United States are limited in their jurisdiction to the territorial districts, to which they are respectively allotted in their organization, and cannot extend their process beyond their local limits, except in certain cases specially provided for by law, of which this is not one.

We shall endeavor to lay before our readers the opinion delivered by Judge Washington, to-morrow. (Franklin Gazette.)

From a London Paper, September 2.

UNION HALL.
Yesterday a young man, who stated his name to be Robert Copely Rainer Montague, a captain in his majesty's service, was brought before R. S. Chambers, Esq. charged by five watchmen of the Surrey new road, with assaulting them.

Sunday night capt. Montague was walking arm in arm at the end of Westminster road, with Lieutenant Bentham, of the 90th regiment, and pushed against a gentleman very rudely; the gentleman spoke to him of his improper conduct, and he immediately raised his fist and knocked the gentleman down. The latter got up and called the watch, and another gentleman, passing, merely spoke to capt. Montague of his behavior, when he received a violent blow. By this time Smith, a watchman, came up and asked the former gentleman who had assaulted him; lieutenant Bentham came forward and said "I assaulted him," and advised Montague to go off, and he would settle matters. The gentleman could not say whether the captain or lieutenant assaulted him, and the watchman advised the captain to go home; he immediately knocked down the watchman and kicked him. Newstead, another watchman, then came up, and he received a terrible blow on the eye, which closed it up and sent him down. Another watchman, named Matthews, then made his appearance, and he received a blow so violent, that he fell almost senseless near his colleagues. One of the watchmen could do no service in securing the captain, he being blind of one eye, and the captain having closed the other. The other two watchmen were kept by him at bay until another watchman hearing the rattle stirring, came up; he boldly seized the captain and secured him; but the poor old fellow suffered for his temerity; the captain having got the watchman's hand into his mouth, bit a large piece entirely off the side, which fell out of his mouth upon the ground. The poor fellow, by the extreme pain, was compelled to loose him, and received a kick on one eye; another watchman who was on the ground, was kicked about the face and head until he exhibited a most shocking appearance; another of the watchmen was kicked in a very dangerous part of the body. At last by the assistance of lieutenant Bentham, he was taken to the watch house. While he was in the watch house, he again attacked another watchman by beating him on the head; seized Schrivener, a patrol, by the neck cloth, and nearly strangled him, and threatened to slay Mr. Holmes, the watch house keeper. He said he was Lord — and a member of parliament; he was superior to the law, and the magistrates might — He had killed one watchman, and thought no more of one than a dog.

The above being sworn to by the different witnesses, and corroborated by lieutenant Bentham, captain Montague, (as he termed himself), said, "I suppose you think I was drunk when I did this?" "Yes, (replied the magistrate) or I should think you would not have acted so intemperately." "No, (the captain said) I was quite sober, and I will explain, if you will allow me. The captain then said, that he did knock down the gentleman, the former having affronted him, and the latter having impudently interfered. He had lent his horse on Sunday to his friend Col. — to go to Lord — and was to have dined himself with Lady —; he did not go, however, and accidentally met with the gentleman that had affronted him, and he knocked him down. He was not charged with the watch, and he believed they had no right to interfere.—One of the rascals impudently told him to "walk on." To be spoke to by such fellows, he could not bear, and he knocked them down as fast as they approached him.

Magistrate.—And did you bite that poor fellow's hand?
Montague coolly.—Yes, I did; they interfered improperly, and I acknowledge I beat them all; I am a young officer just returned from abroad, and my habit there, where I have cut down black men like wheat, may not have impressed me with much respect for such fellows as these.—But I am ready to find bail.—I have one thing to say, that is, when I was brought from the watch-house this morning, I was clapt into a black cell at the back of the office, among felons.

The Magistrate said that he regretted the circumstance, but they had but one place in which they could secure prisoners. The Magistrate ordered the captain to find bail, two house keepers in 100l. each, to answer for his appearance at the Sessions.

A meeting of the members of the band attached to the 1st regt. 2d brigade of Alex. a. militia is requested THIS EVENING, at the usual time and place. J. T. HALLOWELL.

him, and the watchman advised the captain to go home; he immediately knocked down the watchman and kicked him. Newstead, another watchman, then came up, and he received a terrible blow on the eye, which closed it up and sent him down. Another watchman, named Matthews, then made his appearance, and he received a blow so violent, that he fell almost senseless near his colleagues. One of the watchmen could do no service in securing the captain, he being blind of one eye, and the captain having closed the other. The other two watchmen were kept by him at bay until another watchman hearing the rattle stirring, came up; he boldly seized the captain and secured him; but the poor old fellow suffered for his temerity; the captain having told the watchman's hand into his mouth, bit a large piece entirely off the side, which fell out of his mouth upon the ground. The poor fellow, by the extreme pain, was compelled to loose him, and received a kick on one eye; another watchman who was on the ground, was kicked about the face and head until he exhibited a most shocking appearance; another of the watchmen was kicked in a very dangerous part of the body. At last by the assistance of Lieut. Bentham, he was taken to the watch house. While he was in the watch house, he again attacked another watchman by biting him on the head; seized Schriverer, a patrol, by the neck cloth and nearly strangled him, and threatened to slay Mr. Holmes, the watch house keeper. He said he was Lord of the man, and a member of parliament; he was superior to the law, and the magistrates might as well kill him. He had killed one watchman, and thought no more of one than a dog.

The above being sworn to by the different witnesses, and corroborated by lieutenant Bentham, captain Montague, (as he termed himself), said, "I suppose you think I was drunk when I did this?" "Yes, (replied the magistrate) or I should think you would not have acted so infamously." "No, (the captain said) I was quite sober, and I will explain, if you will allow me." The captain then said, that he did knock down the gentleman, the former having affronted him, and the latter having impudently interfered. He had lent his horse on Sunday to his friend Col. Montague, and he was to go to Lord ——— and was to have dined himself with Lady ———; he did not go, however, and accidentally met with the gentleman that had affronted him, and he knocked him down. He was not charged with the watch, and he believed they had no right to interfere. One of the rascals impudently told him to "walk on." To be spoke to by his fellows, he could not bear, and he knocked them down as fast as they approached him.

Magistrate.—And did you bite that poor fellow's hand?
Montague coolly.—Yes, I did; they interfered improperly, and I acknowledge I beat them all; I am a young officer just returned from abroad, and my habit there, where I have cut down black men like wheat, may not have impressed me with much respect for such fellows as these.—But I am ready to find fault.—I have one thing to say, that is, when I was brought from the watch-house this morning, I was clapt into a black cell at the back of the office, among felons.
The Magistrate said that he regretted the circumstance, but there had but one place in which they could secure prisoners.
The Magistrate ordered the captain to find bail, two house keepers in 150l. each, to answer for his appearance at the Sessions.

A meeting of the members of the band attached to the 1st regt. 2d brigade of Alex'a. militia is requested THIS EVENING, at the usual time and place.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Potomac creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shade and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaster acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania. I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the River, will be taken in payment. Letters must be addressed to me at Potomac Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

Valuable Property for Sale.
THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 250 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence. The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables. There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay; nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover. With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of sale or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, Esq.

Notice.

BY virtue of an order from the Orphans' Court of Charles county, the subscribers will sell on the 11th day of November next, all the real and personal estate of Philip Edelen, late of Charles county deceased, consisting of one farm lying near Bryan Town: this land is so valuable and so generally known, that a description of it here is deemed unnecessary. It contains about 400 acres, and will be sold on the following terms, to wit: one third of the purchase money must be paid on the day of sale; the remaining two thirds must be paid in two equal payments, one at twelve months after the day of sale, and the other in two years; the purchaser giving bond, with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale. The personal estate is also valuable, and consists of stock of every description of superior quality; also of household and kitchen furniture; the crop now on the land, and many other articles too tedious here to enumerate. The last mentioned property will be sold on a credit of six months for all sums of twenty dollars and over, the purchaser giving bond with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale; all sums under twenty dollars, the cash will be required. The sale to commence at 11 o'clock A. M. and continue from day to day till all is sold.

PROPOSALS.

By Gideon Fairman, John Binns and Charles S. Parker,
TO PUBLISH
A Splendid Edition of Washington's Farewell Address.
To the People of the United States.

THE world has seen enough of warriors and of Heroes—enough of Statesmen—of men who have guided armies in the field, or dictated as Sages in the Cabinet, for the exclusive purpose of Ambition. History from its earliest page to the present day, has offered to our contemplation, only ONE WASHINGTON, but ONE MAN, whose dangers in war, and labors in peace, were undertaken and supported with a single eye, to the benefit of his country; whose wonderful and honorable success, was the plain result of wisdom in design, and valor in execution; whom danger never appalled, nor defeat depressed; who, persevering in the justice of his cause, wooed Victory till he won her: who coveted no reward but the well earned approbation of those whose interest he lived to promote: who renounced all public honors, when they ceased to be the necessary instruments of good to the people, whose gratitude conferred them: who superior to all Monarchs, was content to be called the American Citizen. His career of glory through life was unstained by crime; and his death was felt as a loss by every individual of that community, whose political existence was the fruit of his exertions.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS of General Washington is the condensed result of long experienced, matured reflection and strong anxiety for the permanent prosperity of his country. His advice concerning the great importance of maintaining indissolubly the federal Union; the danger of indulging too much in party feelings—the necessity of supporting public credit at home:—of maintaining public faith in all our transactions with foreign nations: of encouraging foreign intercourse free from foreign attachments:—are so many lessons of prudence which we should do well to hear in constant remembrance. Why therefore should not his legacy of wisdom and affection, be so published, as to admit of being constantly before our eyes? An ornament to our apartments, while it serves as a memento to guide our public feelings, and to manifest that the author lives in our memories?

To make it such, is the aim of the proposed Edition.

The Publishers are determined that the Address shall be printed on paper of the same quality and size as the splendid edition of the Declaration of Independence now engraving, & shall in all respects be a companion worthy that great State paper. As errors are known from various causes to find their way into the most important writings, the publishers feel it their duty, not only to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy the public, of the authenticity of the copy from which this splendid Edition of the Farewell Address shall be published.

Mr. GEORGE BRIDPORT will complete the Design; of which the following is an outline:—The introductory part of the Address, in highly finished ornamental penmanship, shall form the upper part;—the other parts of the plate, shall be appropriate ornaments;—in the centre below shall be engraved, from an historical design for this publication by Mr. Sully the Surrender of the British Army at Yorktown, October 19, 1781.

The Address itself shall be printed with type of a peculiar and appropriate character, designed for this purpose by Mr. Fairman, and to be cut and cast by our best artists. No more of the type shall be cast than will be necessary to execute this Address; and when it shall be completed, the type and the matrices in which it was cast shall be utterly destroyed; so that no other work shall ever be executed by the same letter which shall have printed the "FAREWELL ADDRESS" of him who lived and died, first in War; first in Peace, and first in the hearts of his Countrymen.

The paper, of the first quality, 36 by 26 inches, will be made by Mr. Amies. The work shall be carefully prepared, and of the best materials. The signature of General Washington from which it is proposed to execute a fac simile for this publication, is that which he affixed to the Constitution of the United States, when he signed it as President of the Convention in which it was framed; Thus associating and concentrating some of the greatest events in the life of this great man and in the history of his Country.

The ornamental writing will be designed and executed in the very best manner; the ornamental parts of the design and vignette, will be engraved by G. FAIRMAN; and the Typographical part executed by John Binns. They will take especial care of the execution of their several duties in this respect, and they will call to their aid, all that liberality, zeal and industry can command from the Sciences and Arts; so as to make the "Farewell Address" no mean specimen of the state of the Fine Arts in the United States.

As much progress has already been made in designing and procuring materials for this splendid edition of Gen. Washington's "Farewell Address," it is expected it will be ready for delivery, with the Splendid Edition of the Declaration of Independence, in the month of December next. That the public may have a more perfect view of the design and style of execution, than can be given in a proposal, of this Tribute to the memory of him who was "A Conqueror for the Freedom of his Country! A Legislator for its Security! A Magistrate for its Happiness!" it is not intended to solicit any Subscriptions until the Ornamental parts of the plate shall be executed. It will then be submitted for public inspection and public patronage, at five dollars a Copy, payable on the delivery of the Engraving. Philadelphia, July 31.
